

HELPING OTHERS: Whitsunday resident Pam Harrison putting others first to help those worse off in Zimbabwe.

Aid for Africa is project for Pam

WHITSUNDAY resident PAM HARRISON has a foot in another continent. Pam, who lives on Hamilton Island, is heavily involved in a project called 'Aid for Africa Down Under'. She spoke to SHARON SMALLWOOD about how the two worlds connect.

PAM Harrison has been a nurse "forever". In 2003, she found herself nursing a patient called Julie Routledge, who had just returned from a trip to Zimbabwe.

"While I was pumping her with antibiotics for three days, she gave me an earbashing about the fantastic children and community over there, and in particular, an Afrikaans woman called Ezelle Schimper," Pam said.

Ezelle was one of the very few farmers left in Zimbabwe. The majority of her friends had fled the strife-ridden country, but for the sake of her workers and their children, Ezelle had decided to stay.

"HIV was a big problem and many of her workers had died from it," Pam said.

"So she decided to build an orphanage and Julie Routledge came back and told me about it. Julie said she was going to start a charity and send clothing, medical supplies, etc in a [shipping] container. I told her she was stark raving mad, but I made the mistake of asking her if I could help."

Since making this momentous offer, Pam has come a long way. Initially she used her nursing background to raise $100,000 in medical supplies.

"And that was just the start."

Pam has now visited Zimbabwe four times, with her next trip scheduled for February 2012.

"I'm helping to build a school of nursing over there. The building has now been paid for by AFADU (Aid for Africa Down Under) donations, some of which were raised at a fund raising event at the Hamilton Island Yacht Club in December 2010," Pam said.

"We raised $18,500 in one night. We had African drummers, food and an African theme - it was a great night," she said.

Pam described the support from her home community here in the Whitsundays as "amazing".

"Everybody just knows what I do and is so supportive. We even sponsor a child through our regular Sunday "Whine Club" sessions," Pam said.

Pam is always on the lookout for new recruits.

"Anyone can donate, sponsor an animal, sponsor a child, knit a bear or a beanie - there are so many ways to help," she said.
